Vacationist Marks Oddity In Numbers

AUTO TRAVELS
EXACT NUMBER OF MILES
AS RESIDENCE NUMBER

Mr. H. J. Warren and his son, Roy Warren, have returned from an enjoyable and highly interesting auto journey northward to the Columbia river and eastward to the Crater of the Moon in Idaho. Upon their arrival home at 5015 Cape May avenue, an exceptionally odd coincidence was noted by Mr. Warren when he found that the speedometer on his machine registered the number of miles traveled at exactly 5015, corresponding precisely to his residence number. "The old boat certainly knew its onions on just how far to travel before returning to headquarters," says Mr. Warren, who was also quite happy to be back in good old Ocean Beach again, where the sea breezes blow. On their vacation journey Mr. Warren and his son visited Lake Tahoe, the Yellowstone Park, Mount Larsen, Mount Hood and other northwestern places of scenic interest. Mr. Warren is a member of the realty firm of Wenrich & Warren on Abbott street.

Under the personal supervision of Mrs. Artie Smith Ritchey, worthy matron of the Southern Star chapter, O. E. There was a large attendance and members immediately associated with the name of Smith predominated throughout the program, which was given in honor of all the present matrons and patrons of the O. E. S. in the San Diego territory, and each of whom was the recipient of a beautiful gift from the matron and patron of the Southern Star chapter. In the line of varied entertainment, Zoa D. S. The tree has rather beautiful foliage, but its fruit is deadly and it is stated that thousands of them in San Diego must go, as the ordinance is retroactive. The street tree commission has filed a report with the council protesting the eradication of the trees.

UNHONORED AND UNSUNG

Breathe there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said:
"My trade of late is getting bad,
I'll try another 10-inch ad."
If such there be, go mark him well
For him no bank account shall swell;
No angels watch the golden stair
To welcome home the millionaire.
The man who never asks for trade
By local line or ad displayed
Cares more for rest than wordly gain.
And patronage but gives him pain.
Tread lightly, friends, let no rude sound
Disturb his solitude profound;
Here let him live in calm repose
Unsought except by men he owes,
And when he dies go plant him deep,
That naught may break his dreamless sleep;
Wherein no clamor may dispel
The quiet that he loved so well;
And that the world may know its loss
Place on his grave a wreath of moss,
And on a stone above: "Here lies
A Chump who wouldn't advertise."

You And Your Bank

Eventually the customer compromised on two thousand dollars in the speculation. At last reports it was making money, and he had been offered six thousand dollars for his interest. But he is not a bit unhappy over the other thousands he might have made if he had plunged. Just the other day he was in the bank talking with the man who advised him. The talk naturally drifted to the business transaction in which the professional man had been guided by the banker.

"Until you told me otherwise I always thought that C had made a big success with that store he had," he confessed. "Even when you told me he hadn't made money with it, I still felt he could make this new business pay. He has all right. But he has certainly had me sitting on the edge of my chair most of the time. I think he has settled down now, or I'd sell out in spite of the money the company has made.

"If I had put my whole five thousand into it, I wouldn't have had my mind on my own business for the first year and a half. As it is, I have a good paper profit which I'm inclined to nurse along—and the bonds I bought with the rest of my money show a good profit, too."

Another advantage has accrued to this customer without his realizing it. The officer with whom he has counseled has developed a sound respect for his judgment. During the intervening years they have discussed several investments and speculations, in which the customer has shown a good combination of discretion and courage. While thus far he has handled his affairs without recourse to borrowing, some day he will face an opportunity too large for his checking account. When that time comes, the bank will undoubtedly lend him money. He has earned a good credit standing by his record, and, all unknown to him, it stands ready to serve him when needed.

Most men treat the banker as they treat the doctor. They do not call on him until they feel an acute need. "Why, I always thought I ought to keep away from the bank except when I need money," is the way a customer expressed it. The customer waits too long, then thinks it is the banker's fault because the banker hesitates to extend him credit.

Establishing a reputation and record which entitle you to credit at your bank are not things to be left to chance, or even to be gone at haphazard. Some planning and some care are required in carrying out the plans. Nothing, of course, short of sheer deception will build credit for a man who is fundamentally not entitled to it. But if he takes the proper steps well in advance of his needs for a loan, a man who is otherwise qualified to borrow finds it much easier to meet his needs through the bank's help.

Going to your banker for information and advice on important undertakings is one way to build his confidence in you. Another way is to let him see in actual transactions how thoroughly reliable you are. Almost any established customer of a bank can borrow money on good collateral—stocks or bonds of recognized worth, or real estate where such loans are permitted by banking laws. And the foundations of not a few high credit reputations were laid by men who borrowed money on collateral when they had no great credit standing and who without fail paid their notes when due. Experience like this with a customer gives the bank's loaning officer a feeling of assurance that when such a man borrows, he asks only for that amount of money which he can pay back on the dot.

Another way in which a customer may improve his standing at his bank is by keeping up the average balance in his checking account. Too many people fail to realize that keeping an active checking account in a bank without leaving a good balance there for the bank to earn interest on is an expense to the institution. Banks in many towns have advertised, "Open a checking account here, we give our best attention to all depositors, large and small," until the townspeople think they are doing the banker a favor by letting him take care of their wages for a few days after pay day.

A banker is like any other business man. He has to make money to stay in business. So it is pretty good sense to let your banker make a little money on your account. Instead of rushing to invest the money if you get $500 saved up, try leaving it in your checking account. It you can't keep from spending it by any other means, try to forget that you have it there. Even if you manage to forget it in this way, your banker will not. You may even notice a difference in his air of friendliness when you walk past his desk.

Golden State
News of Interest to All

Two of the oldest United States land offices in California were closed last week, those at San Francisco and Visalia, and their activities transferred to Sacramento. Nearly all the valuable public lands in the Visalia and San Francisco districts having been taken up by homesteaders, the Government decided these two offices are no longer necessary. With the exception of a land office at Los Angeles—which, it is expected, will be closed next year—only one of the dozen that once existed in California remains. That is at Sacramento.

Tangible proof of the growing desire of citizens of California to make up for lost opportunities for education, is now offered by the University of California which has found it necessary to purchase a four story building in San Francisco at a cost of $147,000, plus $50,000 in alterations, to accomodate those people who wish to take extension work. The extension division of the University offers, practically every subject taught on the main campuses either by special classes throughout the State, or by correspondence. Including lectures and visual programs far in excess of 1,000,000 people are reached each year.

Evidence believed to indicate that high-graders have been operating in the workings of the original Sixteen to One gold mine at Alleghany, Sierra county, has caused an investigation to be undertaken by officials of the State Mining Bureau. Just how much ore has been stolen is in doubt, but H. J. Langdon, executive superintendent of the mine said that the loss, if any was established, would not be more than $3000.

Ten dollars was paid for the last reminders of Bidwell Bar of the early '50s, scene of the first gold strike in Butte County. For this sum, B. L. McCoy, clerk of the Butte County supervisors, purchased an acre of ground at the historic site at a delinquent tax sale conducted by the county tax collector. The property includes the historic home of Isaac Reeves Kecham, the Mother Orange tree and the monument erected and dedicated to the pioneers of California by the Native Sons and Daughters last fall.

Cancellation of the diving act at a Venice pier resort, following the drowning of the horse Lightning, was announced following a conference between the owners of the act and Ocean Park Amusement Association. Lightning, after diving forty feet from a platform, swam out to sea instead of shoreward and when expert swimmers finally headed the floundering animal ashore, it expired on the beach. Leona Carver, owner and rider in many leaps into the water, fainted when the pulmotor failed to revive her pet. Lightning was said to be valued at $20,000. Only a few hours prior to the equine tragedy Municipal Judge Wilson of Los Angeles had ruled that pier promoters and the show owners had not been guilty of cruelty to animals in compelling the horse to dive, as charged by humane society officers.

The services of fourteen submarines and attending vessels have just been offered to the University of California by Captain Ridley McLean, commanding officer in charge of the Submarine Divisions of the United States Navy, for the purpose of making studies of the surface temperatures of the Pacific Ocean between California and Hawaii. The figures will be used in a search for some method of seasonal rainfall forecast by Dr. G. F. McEwen.

The value of gold, silver, copper, lead zinc produced at the mines in California in 1926 was $20,050,801, a decrease of $3,233,553, or 14 per cent, as compared with the value of these metals produced in 1925, according to statistics compiled by J. M. Hill of the bureau of mines. There were decreased yields of 9 per cent in gold, 40 per cent in the value of silver and 30 per cent in the value of copper, but increases of 13 per cent in the value of lead and 76 per cent in the value of zinc produced, as compared with the values of these metals in 1925.

The order for the second ship for the Panama Pacific Line service has just been placed. The new steamer will be 30,000 tons displacement, and identical in every respect with the company's new steamer "California," which will be launched in October. With this new tonnage the Panama Pacific Line will have the two largest ships ever built under the American flag, with a contract speed of 18 knots per hour, they will cut two days from the present length of the voyage between New York and California ports. Each steamer will have capacity of 800 passengers and 8,000 tons of freight. Special attention was given in their design for refrigerated cargo, and each ship will have 100,000 cubic feet of space available for shipment of fruits and other perishable commodities.

Because of the rapid growth of Marin Junior College at Kentfield, Marin County, and the greatly increased enrollment indicated by application for entry at the fall term, the directors have found it necessary to construct a new building. Bids have been called for a one-story frame, stucco finish building to house two laboratories and a library.

California, supporting 5,000,000 people at the present time, should have 15,000,000 within her boundaries. This is the opinion of Stephen Barnson, state real estate commissioner, as expressed in a letter read before a board of directors' meeting of the California Real Estate Association recently. To secure the additional population Barnson advocated that the State of California set aside a sum of money for a nation-wide advertising campaign and create a state bureau of information to collect and classify all the resources of the state, pointing out opportunities in every line of endeavor.

City-owned water systems in the 152 California municipalities where they were maintained last year returned a total revenue of $16,595,262.41, against total ordinary expenses of $8,781,026.92. From the sale of water only the cities realized $14,658,919.84. All but one of the twenty-two city-owned electrical systems returned handsome profits. This figure is 3.4 per cent larger than the total for the corresponding day in 1926, but is slightly smaller than the equivalent figure in 1925. It is expected that at least as many students will register this year as did last year when a total of 4975 was reached.

Substantial gains in the assessment rolls of both the city and county of Sacramento are shown in reports filed with the City Council and the Supervisors, respectively. The grand total assessed valuation for the county is set at $164,289,520, this figure being more than $13,000,000 over the 1926 total. That Sacramento has $26,860 is also shown. For the city of Sacramento, the assessed valuation is $103,673,360, which amount is $4,000,000 in excess of last year's total.

During the first three months of 1927 commercial fishermen operating in the inland waters and off the coast of California in the Pacific Ocean caught and marketed 159,390,739 pounds of fish, according to the quarterly report compiled by the Department of Commercial Fisheries of the State Fish and Game Commission. For This Once Mandy Had to Compromise

Mandy was an incurable optimist and the embodiment of kindliness. She would never admit that anything was wrong with anyone, although sometimes facts pushed her hard. Her young mistress had many suitors, and the latest recruit to the ranks could boast as little in the way of good looks as was humanly possible.

"Grand looking chap, isn't he, Mandy?" queried Miss Marie's mischievous brother when the guest had departed.

Mandy teetered perilously between truth and charity. "C'ose he was," she answered presently with dignity. "Han'some gennulman—han'some gennulman." At that point honesty got the upper hand. "Ceptin'," she added conscientiously, "fo' his features."

Man Using Both Hands Can Accomplish More

Out of every hundred babies born, 17 are naturally right-handed, 3 are left-handed, and the remaining 80 are capable of using either hand with equal ease. Yet, owing to our method of training the young, by the time those hundred babies are three years old all except the three who were left-handed will use the right hand for such essential work as writing, painting and the use of all tools.

There are said to be over 400 different sorts of work in which the equal use of both hands is an advantage, but even in those in which one hand only is generally used it is a tremendous advantage to be able to use the left hand in order to rest the right.

Sir James Barrie, when his right hand failed him, had to learn to write with his left, but Sir Robert Baden-Powell, when bitten by a dog and forced to carry his right arm in a sling, went right on with his work, writing and drawing with the other hand, for he has been able to use both hand equally all his life.

The great animal artist, Landseer, could paint two pictures at the same time, using both hands. The famous Leonardo da Vinci was equally accomplished, and so was Holbein, the portrait painter. More wonderful seems the fact that the well-known surgeon, Mr. Simeon Shell, could operate equally easily with either hand. Sir Oliver Lodge is another well-known man who uses both hands with ease.

It is the left side of the brain that controls the muscles of the right side of the body, so by learning to use the left hand a person actually rests one side of his brain and is therefore able to do more work at a stretch.

Beautiful Church Tower

Many of the parish churches of England and Wales are beautiful, but the tower of the church at Wrexham, Wales, with its corner turrets high as medieval fortresses, its spiralets and crockets, intricate bands and graceful cornices, is a thing of astonishing beauty and worthy to have graced a minster. As a noted traveler once said: "One cannot look at it without acknowledging a debt of deep gratitude to those who built it so many centuries ago."

LACE COATS COMPETE WITH SILK; DANCE FROCKS OF SHEER WHITE

YOUR choice, a summer coat all of lace or of delicate-toned silk—which shall it be? Or perhaps you have made up your mind to own one of the new hand-blocked linen coats whose patterns bespeak East Indian inspiration, or how about a colorful velveteen wrap or one made entirely of ribbon, row upon row? It adds zest to the mode for such delightfully whimsical materials to enter the list of popular mediums for the summer wrap. Furthermore, these prettily frivolous cloakings are yet another proof that we are in the midst of an era of ultra-feminine style trends.

Two Stylish Summer Wraps.

If one must give "a why and a wherefore" of these radically new cloak ideas, let's trace them to their origin—that of tuning them in to complement the popular ensemble costume. Yes, no doubt the ensemble is responsible for the present coat vagaries. Soon as ever the creators of our fashions started to matching up this and that, to complete the compose, it led on and on to using materials related to the frock, for the coat also. Hence we have wraps of all-over lace to wear with gowns of identical all-over lace, also silk coats of the same fabric as the rest of the costume and other versions too numerous to mention.

So enthusiastic is the mode over these fanciful coats they are now being exploited as an individual proposition entirely independent of the ensemble idea. For instance the clever lace coat shown here to the right is designed for summer use. It may be worn over a neat georgette afternoon dress, as pictured, or over a dainty sleeveless beflowered georgette, or over one's washable summer dresses it will prove most winsome. Note the grosgrain ribbon bordering about this coat, which displays a trio of bright colors. Grosgrain ribbon bindings and borderings finish the edges of many a fashionable garment this season. The silk coat to the left in the picture is sheer frocks, which are all white and possessed of many flounces and tiers.

Distinction in simplicity is the present hobby of the mode. Again and again, billowy white tulle or filmy net, posed over under-drops of white satin or taffeta, strike a note of refreshing artlessness in the midst of sophisticated styling. Organdie also holds sway in youths' realm. Indeed the mode is extemporizing on the organdie theme at this moment, playing it in every fascinating key. White georgette, too, is quite a favorite for evening wear. Which all goes to show that this is very much of a "white season."

The lovely white evening frock in the picture typifies the trend toward sweetly simple effects. Alluring transparency distinguishes this model of white tulle which is so charmingly posed by Billie Dove, a screen artist who is gifted with the art of wearing her clothes with distinction. In its general styling it is quaintly picturesque. A dream of a gown is this, with a rather long skirt contrasted by a stylishly short white satin underslip. Smart items are the normal waistline and the sash of white satin which girdles it. White pearls, white satin slippers, with flesh-colored hose and the dainty costume completes its story of unaffected loveliness.

Sometimes the mode permits just a touch of color. Perhaps a huge flower of chiffon sprawls its diaphanous petals at the hip. Or it may be that an enormous bow of tinted malines with streamers finds placement at the waist, dipping its voluminous streamers to accomplish the fashionable irregular hemline.

Here's a fetching idea if one embroiders—work flowers in colorful yarn or white organdie. Try it! So simple to do, so inexpensive—yet, one of the prettiest ideas of the season for the summer frock.

New CALIFORNIA THEATER

Buster Keaton has made another great comedy, according to the critics who have pre-viewed "College," his latest picture which comes to the New California theatre for one week, starting Friday. Besides comedy, the picture has scenes of athletics, as well as romance.

The picture exudes a continuous happy atmosphere. The gags are said to come frequently and are original. Naturally, the young man is earning his way through school, in willing attempts to make a name for himself as a soda jerker, and later as a colored waiter. His sweetheart has told him she might change her mind when he achieved success on the athletic field. So one by one he tries every sport.

Athletic exhibitions of all kinds are given in "College." In one part of the film Charley Borsh, who shares with Charles Paddock the world's record for 100 yards—9 5-10 seconds—runs the century in 9 3-5. The audience is invited to time him. After this exciting exhibition, Buster tries the 100-yard dash, with dire results.

This comedy was made under the Joseph M. Schenck banner and directed by Buster Keaton and James W. Horne.

"College" is a forerunner of the West Coast Greater Movie season, which will be inaugurated at the New California and Balboa theatres and on the entire Pacific coast, beginning Aug. 18. The best pictures that can be obtained will be shown during that time, and the New California and Balboa theatres will have interesting features to offer. The Fanchon and Marco presentations will be in keeping with the spirit of the celebration.

For the week starting Friday, Fanchon and Marco will present the most gorgeous "Idea" they have offered in several months. The "Idea" is entitled "Seasons," and the glorious beauties who will interpret the act have been selected because of the beauty of their faces and figures. Each girl will wear a gown typifying the various seasons and the flower which belongs to each month of the year.

Louis and Freda Berkoff, famous Russian dancers, will hold the center of the stage, and in addition Gene Winslow and Fred Webber, featured singers, will present the theme song numbers.

Milt Franklyn and his band will carry the musical score which includes Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," Chaminade's "Summer," Tosti's "Good-bye," and another song representing winter.

BALBOA THEATRE

If you like to laugh you will like "Running Wild," a fast and furious farce which opens Thursday at the Balboa theatre, for three days, with W. C. Fields and Mary Brian featured. It is obviously built for laughs. If you like to see the worm turn, you will like "Running Wild," even more.

For Fields, according to the advance on the picture, after giving as close an approximation of a worm as is humanly possible by a vertabrate, becomes a lion, and hi "lionization" is all the fault of a hypnotist.

The Finch family, of which Fields is the apologetic but merely legal head, is dominated by Mrs. Finch and son, Junior, a big, fat tyrant child of her former marriage.

W. C. Fields, as Finch, has only one friend in the world, Elizabeth, daughter of his own former marriage. The charm of Mary Brian invests Elizabeth with considerable compensation for the brow-beating Fields gets as father. Elizabeth's need for a new dress as his motive, Finch goes to his fire-eating boss for a raise. The boss sends him to collect a bill from a man-killing debtor. A hypnotist is giving a show for the Lions' convention, and Father Finch finds himself in the theatre, being hypnotized.

"You're a lion," says the professor, and the meek worm turns at last. He collects the debt. From this point on the story is W. C. Fields. He "cleans up" literally and figuratively.

There is a slender love story, too, between Mary Brian and Claud Buchanan as the boss' son, Mary Shotwell plays Mrs. Finch, Barnie Raskie is her son. Others in the cast are Frederick Burton, J. Moy Bennett, Frank Evans, Ed Rosemon and Tom Madden. Gregiry La Carva is the author and director of "Running Wild."

"Perk," the genial Carr of Carr Brothers' band, will bring out another ear feast with his group of popular musicians. Vaudeville specialties furnish additional entertainment. The newsreel complets the bill.

Starting Sunday, Aug. 7., an entire change of bill will present Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill in their latest First National release, "Smile, Brother, Smile." This picture will run four days, closing Wednesday, Aug. 10.

What Advertising Does

Advertising has made Victrola Dog famous. It has put Castoria down your throat, left bristles in your guns, and then come with a rubber set and taken them out. It has put Iodent, Pebeco and Pepsodent on your teeth. It has put Gillette against your hayfield. It has Murine in your eyes; sold you Cuticura for pimples, Pear's for the bath and Ivory for the tub. It has put Arrow collars around your neck and Ingersolls around your wrist. It has jammed your feet in Holeproof socks, put Paris garters on your legs and Tiffany rings on your fingers. It has worn out your jaws on Wrigley's and posted you on what to buy to cure corns, warts, freckles and bunions and ingrowing toe-nails. Go anywhere you want to, do anything you wish and advertising has had a hand in it, absolutely. And then some people ask, "Does advertising pay?"

HERE'S A NEW KIND OF SANDWICH

Impossible as it may seem in this age of progress, a new kind of sandwich has been discovered. It's the Alvarado and is guaranteed by Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, where it was first produced, to perform all the functions of the old-fashioned club sandwich and even more. Miss Alice Bradley, principal of the school, discloses the secret of the new discovery for the first time in the Woman's Home Companion. This is it:

For each person, make a nest of lettuce leaves on a serving platter and place a slice of fresh toast, buttered on one side upon the lettuce. Place a hot fried egg and two slices of crisp bacon upon the toast. Cover with a slice of white meat oof chicken and with three slices of tomato, cover all with a second slice of toast and garnish with a dill pickle laid crosswise on the toast.

The Hawaiian workers wear rubber gloves and the pineapple is not touched by hands during entire canning process.

This is the way the golden Hawaiian pineapple which you eat for breakfast, luncheon or dinner is hauled from the field to the largest fruit cannery in the world, located in Honolulu, Hawaii. The proud fruit Monarch is stripped of his spiked crown, put in a crate, hauled to the railway.

Above: After pineapple has been through "Ginaca" machine which removes shell from fruit meat, it goes on an endless belt before Hawaiian women who select slices according to grades desired.

Above: This is the way the Hawaiian Pineapple Company moves millions of cans of pineapple about in the warehouse. Motor cycles geared to low speed give the cans a "joy ride" when necessary.

Right: When you take from your larder a can of golden Hawaiian pineapple you know it is as fine a product as scientific growing and canning can make it. It is a bit of imprisoned Hawaiian sunshine.

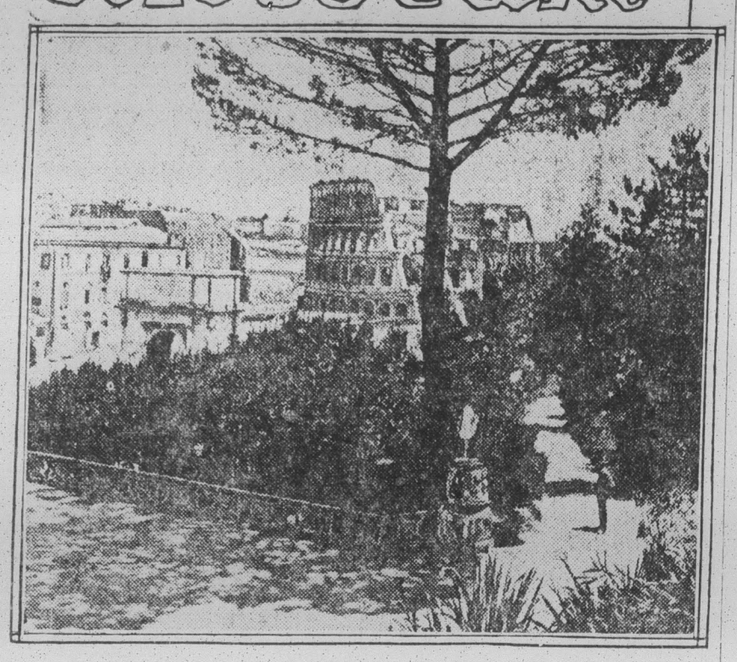
Story of the Colosseum



The Colosseum at Rome.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

IN THE Colosseum in Rome where many hundreds of early Christians were crunched by wild beasts under the sanction of an ancient Roman government, Rome's present-day government recently replaced a huge wooden cross commemorating the martyrs. The cross, originally placed by Pope Benedict XIV in 1749, had been absent since 1862. This great amphitheater, shown in innumerable pictures, is probably the most familiar ruin in the world.

The Colosseum is a monument to a highly civilized people's brutality—a depth of brutality that is hardly conceivable from the point of view of the Twentieth century. The huge structure was built deliberately to furnish the best facilities for three classes of spectacles: fights to the death between armed men, fights between wild beasts, and fights between men and beasts.

Gladiatorial combats had developed from customs of primitive Roman days when on the death of a man of note, all his slaves were slaughtered as human sacrifices during the funeral rites. It was really a step forward in a way, though a feeble one, when it was decided to have the slaves fight so that only half would be killed. These slave combats came to be staged in the forums and were viewed by the populace from temporary wooden seats.

As the lust for this sort of spectacle grew, the professional gladiators came into being. Their combats were moved to the circuses, the long, straight-sided courses, lined with seats, where chariot races were held. These had been in existence in Rome since several centuries before Christ. With the spread of Roman arms in the East came the importation of wild beasts, and the first fights in which these animals were used were also staged in the circuses. But these long, narrow enclosures were not well fitted to such spectacles, and so the amphitheater, an entirely closed circuit of seats around a relatively small level space, was invented expressly for them. Ranged on their steep tiers of seats, a great multitude of eager spectators could watch these bloody combats in all their intimate details.

Began by Vespasian.

The first permanent amphitheater was built in 29 B. C., in the reign of Augustus, of stone and wood. In 57 A. D., Nero built a wooden one which burned a decade or so later. In 72 A. D., Vespasian began the greatest of ampitheaters, which the world has come to call "the Colosseum." No short cuts were taken as in the building of many other ampitheaters, where mounds of earth are thrown up and faced with stone or concrete. The vast Colosseum was built from the ground up, and far below ground, out of masonry. Few single structures, until the day of the super-skyscraper of America, have contained as great a cubic volume of stone and brick and concrete as this eliptical grandstand of old Rome, built for the spectacular slaughtering of man and beast.

Begun by Vespasian, work on the structure was continued under his son, Titus. It was the latter who sacked Jerusalem. Twelve thousand of the many Jews captured at that time were set to work to complete the great building. With its dedication in 80 began one of the goriest chapters in the story of Roman amusements. The celebration of its opening lasted 100 days. Thousands of wild animals and hundreds of men were slaughtered to make this gigantic "Roman holiday."

The Colosseum is not quite so large in area covered as the modern football amphitheater. The eliptical arena (named from the sand that was spread on its surface to absorb the blood of its victims) is in round numbers 280 feet long and 180 feet across; while the rectangular playing space of a football field is 300 by 260 feet. To enclose such a playing field, allowing a margin outside the gridiron, a football amphitheater must be 350 feet or more long and about 250 feet wide, inside dimensions.

Its Walls, Arches and Seats.

In most modern athletic amphitheaters the seats rise on a relatively gentle slope and the highest are seldom over 50 feet above the field. In the Colosseum the slope was steep—approximately 45 degrees—and the outside wall of the structure towers 160 feet above the ground, or approximately to the height of a 15 or 16-story office building. The outer wall was built of great blocks of stone, while the interior was mostly of brick and concrete. The outer wall was made up largely of arches in three tiers, one above the other, and extending side by side entirely around the building. The arches on the ground level were numbered, and through them the Roman populace poured on the way to the spectacles.

The choice seats were those closest to the arena. From them one could lean over to tease the tawny lions who could leap almost, but never quite, to the top of the protecting wall; and from them one could almost feel the air of swishing swords hacking at the heads of the gladiators. In these preferred positions sat the emperor on a slightly raised dais, and below and to the sides, senators, leading patricians and the Vestal virgins, the young priestesses of the Temple of Vesta, who were so carefully nurtured and guarded by Rome. Many a time the thumbs of these young women gave the final signal which determined the death of a wounded gladiator.

Next above the senators sat patricians and other citizens in a dwindling scale of importance. All but the topmost seats were numbered and tickets were provided. For places in the unnumbered section the less fortunate had to wait in line, sometimes all night, as is the case of world-series fans in America today.

Grim and ghastly as the purpose of the Flavian amphitheater was, it was in no sense crude. It was a marvel of solid construction admirably fitted to the uses to which it was to be put. Beneath the arena in chambers and passages were concealed ingenious mechanisms by means of which sections of the floor could be raised or lowered, popping animals or men unexpectedly into view or removing them as quickly. Also the entire space could be flooded for naval combats.

Fortress in the Middle Ages.

For nearly four and a half centuries the Flavian amphitheater played its bloody role in Roman affairs. It was not without mishaps that might have put it in ruins much sooner had not Rome still been a going civilization. It was twice struck by lightning in the Second century and twice injured by earthquakes in the Third; but each time it was restored, and the long series of deaths in its arena grew even greater.

After Rome's fall, in the turbulent Middle ages, the old amphitheater, then the Colosseum, was used as a fortress by one of the family factions of Rome, the Frangipanis. In these times, too, it was robbed of the iron clamps of the outer wall which held the stone blocks together. The outer walls that stand today are deeply pitted because of these depredations. In 1349 an earthquake shook down a large part of the weakened outer structure. There was no power able or interested to restore it, and the ruin of the building then definitely set in.

For a long time after this the Colosseum was a quarry. Thousands of tons of travertine, marble, and other materials were dug out of the fallen pile or stripped from the portion still standing, and carried off for use in building many of the palaces and churches of Renaissance Rome. So active were the vandals that the Colosseum might have been entirely destroyed but for Pope Benedict XIV, who, in 1749, protected it by consecrating it to "the Passion of Christ" and raising in it a great wooden cross in memory of the sufferings there of the martyrs. From time to time in modern days steps have been taken to save the amphitheater from further injury.

Only a little more than half of the original structure now stands, considering the entire cubic contents of the masonry. But most of those who have viewed it feel that the part is much more majestic than the whole.

A DAY WITH SAUCES

If you'd make life worth livin'
Try these big things worth while:
They're three; I'll sum 'em up ag'in—
Jest love an' work an' smile.

A SAUCE as an accompaniment to a dish is as essential as the ordinary seasoning is indispensable to make a dish appetizing. A very ordinary dish with an appropriate sauce has made many a chef famous and gone down in history as a worth-while achievement.

Certain foods are best with certain sauces. The flavor of the sauce enhances the flavor of the dish. A lamb roast with mint sauce is taken out of the ordinary class. Pork roast needs apple sauce to make the pork more tasty and digestible. We like turkey and cranberry, mutton with capers, veal with tomato or onion, and so on ad infinitum.

Venison, a choice dish at all times, is greatly improved with a spiced grape jelly; duck with sliced oranges or a tart jelly.

Fish of any kind is always better served with a sauce, usually of some acid variety. Oyster sauce is a great favorite with fish. Bechamel and brown sauces are also good sauces as sauce tartare and tartar sauce.

Wildfowl is especially good with—

Ripe Olive Sauce.

Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one sliced onion and cook until slightly brown. Add five and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper. Stir to a smooth paste. Add two cupfuls of brown stock gradually and continue cooking, stirring constantly. Cut the meat from a dozen ripe olives, cover with boiling water and cook seven minutes, then add to the sauce.

Green Pepper Butter.

Cut a slice from the stem ends of three or four green peppers, remove the seeds and all the white portion. Cook in boiling water until soft. Drain and chop fine, rub through a sieve; there should be two tablespoonfuls of the pulp. Cream one-half cupful of butter and add the pulp, stirring until evenly mixed. Spread over planked fish, steaks or chops—it will enhance the flavor.

Lemon Butter.

Cream one-half cupful of butter, add lemon juice—about two tablespoonfuls, drop by drop—stirring constantly. This is fine for any fish mixture, lobster or crab meat. This is a delicious sauce spread over a broiled fish, planked fish or cooked hot lobster.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

GROWING OLD

TWO things the human mind dreads—Old Age and Death.

Both of these we battle against and put off as long as possible—one because of the weaknesses and dependency which it entails, the other because we know not what is beyond.

The result of this is that very few of us grow old gracefully and attractively.

We strive to be young when we should be willing to be old.

We ape the tastes and fashions of youth when we have long been unsuited to them and make ourselves ridiculous when we might at least be interesting.

It is truer, perhaps, of women than of men that the appearance of a gray hair and the permanent establishment of a wrinkle is looked upon as a sort of individual disgrace, an indication that something has been left undone that should have been done or something done which should not have been done.

As a matter of fact, there is nothing more beautiful and nothing more interesting than attractive old age.

Wisdom, which comes only with years, should then reach its highest development.

Judgment which in youth is neither sound nor trustworthy, should then be dependable and worth while consulting.

The time to prepare for old age is before it arrives.

The time to prepare for the harvest is in the seed time, and youth is the seed time of our lives.

If every young man and young woman would keep the future in mind, plan for it, think for it, study for it, old age would lose half its dread and terror and we should look forward to it as the time when we should enjoy the results of a well-arranged preparation.

It is the old age which follows a lack of this preparation that is hollow and sad, the old age which has no memories but regrets, its future gone, its past a failure.

Addison, great poet and essayist, wrote: "He who would pass the declining years of his life with honor and comfort, should when young, become old, AND REMEMBER WHEN HE IS OLD THAT HE HAS ONCE BEEN YOUNG."

We have not yet learned to keep the body from growing old. The fairness of the skin will die. The hair will whiten and the wrinkles come. The knee will crook less willingly to the will and the back may bend with increasing years.

But the heart, the spirit, can be kept young.

The soul never grows old else the hereafter would lose its chiefest glory.

Grow old happily. Grow old gracefully, accepting nature's decrees with a willing compliance to their requirements.

But think, as long as you may, young thoughts. Continue to learn. Continue to progress. There is much in old age that is beautiful. Shut your eyes to what is not.

WE GET AS WE GIVE

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

IF YOU would be happy, make somebody glad,
And the joy you are giving away,
The sunshine you bring to hearts that are sad,
Will shine in your heart some day.

If you would be rich, then give of your store,
Freely and joyfully, too,
And all that you give—with even more—
Will surely come back to you.

If you would climb to life's higher things,
Then help some unsatisfied soul
To reach the heights, and you'll find it brings
Your heart to its chosen goal.

If you would be loved, then love all men,
As your Brothers upon the earth,
And the love you give will come back again
To the earth that gave it birth.

We get as we give—in equal amount—
Of love and everything true;
So give and give without measure or count,
And it ALL will come back to you!

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21 Arthur D. Little Got the Hardest Job of His Life.

AT 21 I got the hardest job I ever had. A company in Rhode Island had set up a mill to make paper by the sulphur process, a process which had been taken over and developed commercially by the Swedes and the Germans. This mill was the first to use this process commercially in the United States, and was in charge of a Swede inventor and a German engineer. The officers and board of directors knew nothing about paper making or chemistry. They ought to employ some one who knew a little about chemistry, and when I applied for the job the president offered me two dollars a day. He would not so far commit himself as to hire me by the week.

Almost coincidentally with my arrival the German engineer got into a row with the president and left the place flat. The board of directors held a solemn meeting and as I seemed to be their only resource, they called me in. I was only twenty-one and the youngest man in the plant.—Arthur D. Little.

TODAY:—Arthur D. Little is one of the most celebrated chemical engineers in the country and is the head of the largest private laboratory in the world, located at Cambridge, Mass. He left the mill referred to above soon after he became the superintendent and, after a long struggle, established himself with a large clientele. He is an expert in industrial chemistry, and a pioneer in paper making by the wood pulp process.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

CALLING HIM THE "PASTOR"

PASTOR" is a prosaic sounding word, and one in whose story we would look for the severe flavor of early religion rather than the element of poetry. Yet such is the perseverance of language. We rarely find what we expect. And in the origin of this term as it is used today as another name for the minister, we find no "thou shalt nots," theology but a poetic metaphor.

"Pastor" is derived from the Latin "pastor," which comes from "pastum," meaning to pasture or to feed. And who would not find poetry in the term which describes the minister as one who will feed us if we will but go to him? One may presume that it is hardly necessary to explain the metaphorical reference as spiritual feeding of his flock.

"WHITE FEATHER" or to "show the white feather" is an expression meaning to betray timidity or to back down or out; a sign of yielding.

Some years ago a bloody fight was raging between the Indians and the settlers of the backwoods of our country. A Quaker who refused to flee saw one day a horde of Indians rushing down toward his house. Thinking to pacify them, he hurriedly set food before the savage horde, and when they had eaten the chief fastened a white feather over the door as a symbol of peace and friendship. Though many bands passed that house, none ever violated the covenant by injuring any of its inmates or property.—Anne S Turnquist.

Hat Gave Warning of Oscar's Temper

One of the eccentricities that made the late Oscar Hammerstein, the noted theatrical impresario, such a picturesque figure on Broadway is recounted by George Blumenthal in an article in Liberty. "When you saw Oscar Hammerstein coming down the street wearing his funny silk hat, you knew he was in a good humor. But if he were wearing a slouch hat—look out!

"I recall that at the Manhattan opera house there was a little place beneath the stage which had never been finished," the writer tells. "This 'cave' would admit about six persons and was a great place to be when Hammerstein went on one of his many rampages. We employees called it the Cave of Refuge. Before Hammerstein arrived for the day, we generally had a lookout posted. He would come back and report something like this: 'It's all right—the boss is wearing his high hat.' Or: 'Watch out—he's got on that slouch hat!' The slouch hat meant the Cave of Refuge for us."

To find out how many yards of skin it takes to cover a human body, Doctor Takahira, Japanese physician, had a special variety of thin strong paper which adheres closely to curved surfaces pasted over his nude form. This was dried, then removed, cut into flat pieces and measured. In this way Doctor Takahira discovered it took 16 square feet of skin to cover him, although he is only 5 feet 6 inches tall. . . . That is another thing we shan't have to worry about from now on.—Capper's Weekly.

Bouquet and Braddock

FALL OF BRADDOCK Painting by C. Schuessele in the Pageant of America, Yale University Press

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE hundred and seventy-two years ago (July 9, 1755), there occurred within the present city limits of Pittsburgh a battle which was one of the greatest defeats ever inflicted upon an army of white men by their red enemies. An army of 1,500 British regulars and provincials, commanded by Gen. Edward Braddock, marching to the capture of the French Fort DuQuesne, was met on the banks of the Monongahela river by a force of less than 900 French and Indians and utterly routed with a loss of nearly 900 killed and wounded. Thus Braddock's defeat became a high spot in American school history.

Eight years later another army of British regulars and colonials, numbering 450 men and commanded by Col. Henry Bouquet, was marching through the forest only a few miles away from the spot where the unburied bones of Braddock's men still littered the ground. They, too, were on their way to this same fort at the forks of the Ohio, only it was now in the hands of the British and was called Fort Pitt instead of Fort DuQuesne. But it was closely beleaguered by the enemy, the warriors of the great chief Pontiac, and if Fort Pitt fell a veritable red wave of destruction would sweep over the border settlements of the Quaker colony. If it held out until Bouquet arrived, that danger would be greatly lessened.

Twenty-five miles from their goal, on the banks of a little creek called Bushy Run, the soldiers were attacked by Indians. There, on August 5 and 6, 1763, occurred one of the most brilliant victories ever registered by an army of white men over their Indian foes and one of the most decisive defeats that the red man ever suffered. It was due solely to the skill of Col. Henry Bouquet, a Swiss soldier of fortune.

Braddock's defeat is a familiar word to everyone. You will search the schoolbooks in vain for mention of Bouquet's victory. Such is the inconsistency of history!

The story of Gen. Edward Braddock is also an example of the injustice of history, especially the so-called "popular history." For more than a hundred and fifty years "popular history" has done him a grave injustice, has painted him as a strong-willed professional soldier, scorning advice, a stubborn fool rushing to a well-merited destruction. Fortunately for his fame, modern historians have revised that estimate and one of them, no less an authority than Archer Butler Hulbert, has even declared that Braddock's defeat should really be Braddock's victory, because it was the ability of the British as demonstrated by this unfortunate general, to make a road across the country from the Potomac to the Ohio and to make a second three years later that really won the Ohio country. It has remained for other historians to correct many of the other utterly distorted ideas about this "bloody business" of Braddock.

By digging up contemporary documents long hidden away in musty archives, they have proved that, contrary to all the statements of "popular history," Braddock did not fall into an ambuscade, that he did not scorn the advice of Washington and other colonials, that he did not throw away the only chance to win a victory after his army was attacked by driving his soldiers back into line, instead of letting them fight from behind trees as they tried to do. A study of the map of this engagement which appears in Parkman's "Montcalm and Wolfe" will dispel at once that ambush theory.

COL. HENRY BOUQUET — GEN. EDW. BRADDOCK

Recent biographies of Washington show that Braddock did take this young Virginia colonel's advice and that he profited by it. As for the charge that it would have been better to have let men fight from behind trees, military experts have declared that Braddock did the only possible thing to do when he attempted to accept his losses, form a column, and push his way forward out of the vise in which his army was caught.

Apparently the earlier generation of historians thought it necessary to build up the reputation of Washington and his other colonials by running down those of Braddock and his British subordinates. Certainly this was not necessary in the case of Washington, for a simple recital of the fact is enough to show the brilliance of his achievement in this affair. It is now generally admitted that one of the contributing factors to the disaster was the jealousy and lack of co-operation shown by the various colonial governments and that under the circumstances his expedition was doomed from the start. If Americans can take pride in the part played by any of their fellow Americans, Washington and Franklin are about the only ones entitled to their admiration. Modern historical scholarship has revealed Edward Braddock in the light of a man who, for all of his faults, was a real military leader, as the victim of circumstances and as a man who deserves better from history than the odium which so long has been attached to his name.

When we see how unjust history has been to Braddock, the defeated, it is little to be wondered at that it has not done better by Bouquet, the victorious. In considering his achievement in relation to the circumstances under which he fought, his gallant fight and the forces which he had at hand to wrest victory from what seemed to be certain defeat, it is not saying too much to rank him among the great captains of American history. Picture if you can the situation in which this leader found himself on that hot August night, away out on the western frontier of Pennsylvania. Encamped upon a low barren hill to which they had been driven after the attack that morning, his little force of 450 men were posted on the slopes in a large circle. In the center of the circle lay 35 desperately wounded officers and men. In the blackness of the forest which surrounded Bouquet's army on every side were hidden Indians three or four times as many as the whites. Flushed with their recent successes in the capture of a number of British army posts and remembering the great victory which they had won over Braddock, who had more than three times as many men as did Bouquet, the savages were confident of another victory. Outside of the circle lay the bodies of some 25 soldiers, killed in the fighting during the day. On the hill there was suffering from heat and thirst and undressed wounds, for there was not a drop of water to be had.

This was the situation which Bouquet faced at the dawn of August 6. There was no hope for rescue either from the tiny force which garrisoned Fort Pitt and which was praying for his arrival, nor from any of the posts which lay behind him. He must fight it out by himself. Defeat meant the annihilation of every man in that little army and a horde of blood-mad savages sweeping eastward with tomahawks and scalping knives against the women and children crowded into the unprotected towns behind him. With the coming of daylight the Indians resumed their attack and slowly but surely the plunging fire of the Indians cut down the number of defenders on the hill. At last, Bouquet, seeing that destruction was inevitable if this type of fighting continued, resolved to attempt one risky maneuver and wager everything on one desperate chance.

If he could get the enemy out into the open long enough to give his Highlanders an opportunity for a bayonet charge, he believed that one such decisive stroke might end the affair. Explaining clearly to his men what he wanted them to do, so there would be no mistake, the colonel ordered the two companies of Highlanders to withdraw suddenly from the line, retreat rapidly across the hill, until they reached the little ravine which ran along one side of it, advance down this ravine and be ready to attack from it when necessary. As the Highlanders did this, the Indians, seeing the maneuver and believing it to be the beginning of a retreat which would give them a chance to fall upon the rear of the retiring column, abandoned their cover and the whooping mob of savages came charging out into the open and like a thunderbolt struck the weakened line which had been extended across the hill to replace the Highlanders. Under the terrific onset this line gave way, but just in the nick of time the Highlanders came charging out of the ravine and fell upon the rear of the Indians. As they bore down upon the howling red men with their flashing steel the Indians realized that they had been trapped. Then Bouquet put the final touch upon his magnificent tactics.

Once more taking a desperate chance, he again broke his line and threw two companies of light infantry out of the circle on the other flank. The flying Indians, retreating before the Highlanders, ran squarely into the infantry and withered away before the volleys which swept their line. A few moments later the savages had fled, leaving Bouquet in full possession of the field. It had been a dearly bought victory for the gallant colonel. Nearly a fourth of his force had been killed and wounded, but he had saved his army and with it he saved Pennsylvania. As he advanced toward Fort Pitt he met but little opposition from the Indians and when he relieved that fort he sounded the knell to the high hopes of the great Pontiac. Within a year Pontiac's conspiracy had collapsed entirely, and the last threat to English occupation of the North American continent was ended.

Potential of Babyhood

Consider the power of human personality. In a tiny bundle of flesh that we call a baby there lies dormant power sufficient to lift the entire race to loftier heights and turn the course of history into fairer ways. The baby grown to manhood becomes a soldier leading his country's troops to victory in the hour of apparent defeat; an orator swaying a nation with his eloquence; a musician composing strains destined to thrill unborn generations; an inventor whose creative genius will enrich the world and make life easier and more abundant for hundreds of millions.—Psychology Magazine.

Oldtime Gambling Game

Hieronymus is an old gambling game which was often played at fairs. The layout usually consisted of a piece of oilcloth with figures on it from 1 to 6. The players placed their money on the numbers. The operator shook three big dice in a dice cup, then turned the cup down on the board. When the cup was lifted the numbers displayed on the dice were the winning numbers.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. OWL

Old Mr. Owl wanted to write a book and he asked the fairies how to set about doing it.

"Well," said the Fairy Queen, "it makes a good deal of difference, old Mr. Owl, what you want to write about."

"What nonsense!" he said. "It's just that I want to know how to start off with my book.

"Just think what a marvelous book it will be—for as long as folks can remember I have been called the Wise Bird—the bird who is awake at night, and whose eyes are so very bright!"

"Before I started saying what a fine book it would be, if I were you, I'd write it and give other people the chance to say so," said the Fairy Queen.

Mr. Owl began to write with his pen, made out of one of Mr. Turkey Gobbler's best feathers, on a large, flat stone, which he put in the hollow of his tree.

Very late in the night, he awakened the fairies who had been sleeping, and told them to listen to his book.

Then he called all the owls from the neighborhood with a loud hoot-hoot.

But before he began to read, he said,

"I've not enough light. I will hurt my eyes—my beautiful, wise, big eyes."

Of course Mr. Owl could really see quite well, but he had a reason for saying this.

You see he had made a special arrangement to have his own lights, and when he said that he hadn't enough, from all over came countless little fireflies.

They sparkled and gave the most beautiful light all over the woods,

Mr. Owl Began to Write.

and Mr. Owl put his spectacles on his nose and said,

"Now I see to perfection—which means quite all right." And Mr. Owl commenced reading his book.

It told about the parties, balls, and picnics in Fairyland, and of the wild adventures and happenings in the woods. The fairies were absolutely delighted that a book had been written with so much about them in it.

And the Fairy Queen was more than happy, for the last chapter was all about her.

"Well," said Mr. Owl, "you made me ashamed of myself for boasting about my book before I had written it, and so the only thing I could do was to write a wise chapter all about you."

The Fairy Queen smiled with pleasure and also with amusement—for Mr. Owl had certainly thought he could write a wise book—though the next time, perhaps, he wouldn't say so before he had written it.

The fireflies had been sparkling and flashing lights all this time, and finally they whispered,

"Have a dance, all of you, we'll give you the light and dance too.

"It is not well to read books all the time at a party—you must dance."

So they ended off with a fine dance, and old Mr. Owl, with his book under his wing, danced with the rest of the owls and fairies.

But before the evening was over he presented to the Fairy Queen a copy of his book, which said on the cover,

"A Book, by Wise Mr. Owl."

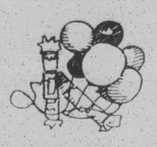
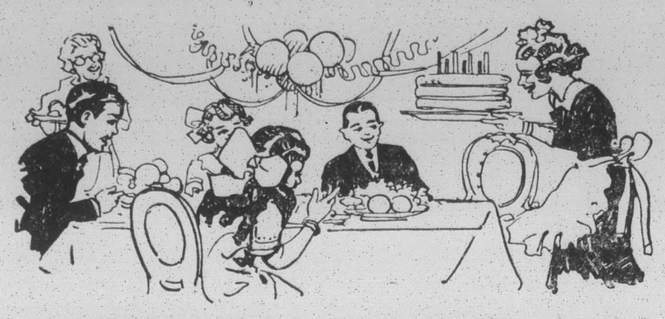
WHEN THE CHILDREN GIVE A PARTY





By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary expert and lecturer on household science.

CHICKEN patties are delicious. Make small baking powder biscuits, rather thicker than usual, bake quickly and while still warm remove the top crust and scoop out as much of the centers of the biscuits as possible. Meantime prepare creamed chicken, using only the white meat and cutting it into small neat cubes. Fill the biscuits and replace the tops. Serve on lace paper doilies on small plates.

Prune Frappe

Cook half a pound of prunes as usual, cool, drain and remove stones, cut in pieces and add to the prune juice the juice of one orange and one-half a lemon. Sweeten to taste and freeze to the frappe stage, pile in sherbet glasses and top with whipped cream.

Chicken Custard

Make a white sauce of two cupfuls milk, and one tablespoonful each flour and butter, season to taste and fold in a cupful of finely chopped chicken, also one beaten egg. Pour into tiny ramekins and bake to a delicate brown.

Prune Whip

Soften one tablespoonful gelatine in two tablespoonfuls cold water, dissolve over boiling water and add a cupful of hot prune pulp and one-half cupful of sugar. Beat while cooling, and when beginning to stiffen, fold in a cupful of whipped cream and the well beaten whites of two eggs. Turn into individual molds and chill. Unmold and serve on pretty plates, garnishing each with two halved prunes filled with halved marshmallows. Top each whip with a star of whipped cream.

Party Sandwiches

Use whole wheat and white bread for these sandwiches, slice thin and remove crusts. With a cookie cutter forming a star or a pussy cat or a chicken, cut figures from the centers of half the slices. Spread the other slices with jelly or jam, cover with the slices from which the figures have been cut, then in the white bread slices insert the figures cut from the whole wheat bread and vice versa.

Surprise Cake Tarts

Prepare a simple cake batter and bake in small muffin pans, when done, cut a circle in the top of each, and remove as much of the inside of the cake as possible, fill the cavity with bright red jelly, smooth over the top and ice with a boiled icing.

Prune Ice Cream

Cook one-half pound of prunes in one and one-half cupfuls of water, when tender, drain and remove stones and chop prunes fine. Add one-half cupful sugar, the prune juice and three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Cook five minutes, then cool and add one and one-half cupfuls of cream. Partially freeze, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Finish freezing and pack away in ice and salt to ripen two hours.

Party Cocoa

Blend together two tablespoonfuls of cocoa, four tablespoonfuls sugar and one-half cupful of water. Cook five minutes, then add to a quart of hot milk, beat with a rotary beater till frothy, serve in small cups with a teaspoonful of whipped cream or half a marshmallow on each.

Prunitas

Cook prunes in as little water as possible, until very tender, stone, and press through a sieve and to one cupful of pulp add a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and enough fine confectioners sugar to form a stiff paste. Press in a shallow pan and set away to harden, then cut in squares and press a nut meat on each.

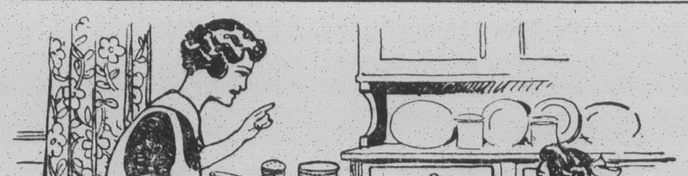
COMPANY PIES FOR EVERY DAY TASTES



By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary expert and lecturer on household science.

PRUNE meringue pie is a delicious dessert. Soak and stew as usual one pound of prunes, cool, drain and remove the stones. To the the pulp add two-thirds of a cup of sugar, a pinch of salt, a tablespoonful of melted butter, a tablespoonful of orange juice, and the prune juice reduced by cooking to one cupful. Line a pie pan with pastry and place the prune mixture in it, bake until the pastry begins to brown slightly, top with a meringue made by whipping the whites of two eggs to a stiff dry froth, then add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, beat again vigorously and finally fold in four additional tablespoonfuls sugar and a tablespoonful of orange juice. Arrange over the pie, and brown in a very slow oven, 250 to 300 degrees.

Cocoanut Apple Pie

Peel and slice thin, four large tart apples, place in a sauce pan with one-fourth cupful water, half a cup of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Simmer gently, until just tender, cool, line a pie pan with flaky pastry and fill with the cooked apples, sprinkle thickly with shredded cocoanut, cover in lattice fashion with criss cross strips of pastry, bake in a moderately hot oven. Just before serving, dot here and there with halved maraschino cherries.

Lemon Cream Pie

Cream together one-fourth cupful butter and one cupful sugar, beat in a tablespoonful of cornstarch and the well beaten yolks of three eggs, and the grated rind and juice of one large lemon. Beat the mixture until light, then add a cupful of rich milk and finally fold in the stiffly whipped whites of three eggs. Pour into a pastry lined pan and bake in a moderate oven. If the pie seems to brown too quickly, cover with a sheet of heavy paper. The filling should be firm in the center when the pie is finished.

Prune Cream Pie

Wash, soak and cook in one and one-half pints of water a pound of prunes. Cool, drain and remove pits, arrange the prunes in a pastry lined pan. Bring the prune juice to boiling point and thicken with two teaspoonfuls cornstarch blended with one-fourth cup of cold water, add three-fourths cupful sugar, and a tablespoonful of butter, pour over the pie and bake in a moderate oven. Cool and top with whipped cream sweetened and flavored to taste.

Coffee Nut Pie

Scald two cupfuls milk and pour it over half a cupful of sugar mixed with three tablespoonfuls cornstarch, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, and add one cupful clear strong black coffee. Cook over hot water till slightly thickened, then add two eggs beaten with one-fourth cupful sugar, cook five minutes longer, add half a cupful chopped nut meats and a teaspoonful vanilla. Pour into pastry lined pie shell, scatter granulated sugar and chopped nuts over surface, and bake in a moderate oven.
